Based on the analysis of customer purchasing behaviour, the highest total chip sales come from Older Families (Budget) and Young Singles/Couples (Mainstream). These segments also purchase chips in large quantities, making them key drivers of category revenue. While Premium customers spend slightly more per transaction on average, Mainstream shoppers dominate in terms of both volume and overall sales. The most purchased brands are Kettle, Smiths, and Pringles, indicating strong brand loyalty in these groups. We recommend focusing promotions and targeted marketing on Older Families and Young Singles/Couples, especially in the mainstream segment. Additionally, stocking larger pack sizes from top-selling brands could boost volume sales. Premium customers may respond well to upselling and bundle offers on high-end brands.
